

DIFFERENCES IN JOB EXPECTATIONS AND ENGAGEMENT AMONG REPRESENTATIVE OF X AND Y

Edyta Kozak
Maria Curie-Skłodowska University, Poland
edyta.kozak92@gmail.com

Abstract:

The labor market is a mix of people from different generations. At work, their characters, values and expectations meet. This article gives a brief overview of the generations existing in the labor market in terms of their engagement and job expectations. The purpose of the study was to determine the differences between generations X and Y in the tendency to sacrifice work, which allowed to determine their functioning in the organization.

Keywords: generation X, generation Y, job expectations, engagement